

You'll Never Believe Who Lifespan Blames for Short Staffing. YOU!

Finger-pointing Lifespan executives say that employees are the ones to blame for short-staffing.

Hospital officials told an RIPR healthcare reporter that, "It's been tough to keep staffing levels up because a lot of union employees are out on leaves of absence."

Lifespan also said that employee claims that understaffing quality patient care are, "totally false."

Management denies understaffing is a problem and blames employees for understaffing all at the same time.

Management should stop playing the blame game and focus on negotiating a fair contract that addresses employee concerns.
